

transfer the loading conditions at these locations while significantly reducing heat flow. The transmittance can be improved by as much as 80%.

~~Material data information for the thermal modelling examples shown is available upon request. Please contact us to obtain these or the thermal performance and condensation indices results of other modeled areas in the building envelope from our thermal modeling library.~~

